

The Herald and News

IN REPLY TO STEVENSON.

If Constables are Working for Gunter's Election the Governor Knows.

In his campaign speech in Newberry Mr. W. F. Stevenson, candidate for Attorney General, made the assertion that Mr. Bateman, chief constable at Columbia, had organized his district in the interest of Mr. Gunter, Mr. Stevenson's opponent, and called upon Governor McSweeney to say whether or not he was hands off in this campaign. In reply, the following from the Governor appeared in yesterday's News and Courier:

Governor McSweeney says that if Mr. Bateman or any other State constable is taking any active part in this campaign it is absolutely against his wishes and orders. The constables, of course, have a right to vote, but he wants it distinctly understood that they cannot take an active part in politics, because to do so means a neglect of the work which they are paid to do. If any State constable is officious or active in politics and is thereby, as must necessarily follow, neglecting his work and the fact is reported to Governor McSweeney by any responsible citizen it will be but a short matter to end the incident by promptly removing the constable.

Governor McSweeney declared on the stump in his last campaign that he had issued positive instructions against any constables taking part in the campaign, and that he had issued an order that they were not to attend the meetings, because they could not do their work there, and the same rule holds good now. Governor McSweeney says it is impossible for him to keep up with each and every officer of the State, but that he would consider it a favor if constables who are neglecting their work to dabble in politics are formally reported to him. He knows nothing further about this particular case than is reported in the proceedings of the meeting.

Governor McSweeney says that he has something more to do than to inquire into the personal views of the State constables, but he has a perfect right and expects to make them attend to their work as far as he can, and that they have no right to visit other places than those to which they are assigned, and that they must not mix up in politics, and that he thought that by this time every one knew his position full well.

To Vote on Special School Tax.

An election will be held at St. Luke's school house, district No. 13, on the 26th of this month, to decide upon the question of voting a special school tax of two mills.

There is hardly any doubt that the tax will be voted. At least, there should not be.

Miss Louise McIntosh Resigns.

It was learned yesterday that Miss Louise McIntosh, who was re-elected a teacher in the Newberry Graded Schools, has offered her resignation to the Board of Trustees. The resignation will be acted upon by the Board at their meeting tonight.

The Board will also tonight fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Bell, of Laurens.

The Senatorial Campaign Party.

The candidates for the United States Senate now canvassing the State will be in Newberry on Tuesday, the 29th of the present month. The meeting will be held in the same place as the one on last Tuesday.

The barbecue will be furnished by Messrs. Jno. A. Senn and T. B. Perry. The candidates will be entertained by the people of Newberry.

The Smallpox Situation.

So far only two more case of smallpox have developed, making three now within the city limits. The patients are together in a house on Mr. E. B. Wilbur's place, and a strict quarantine has been established. The Board of Health lost no time in getting to work to prevent the spread of the disease, and every precaution has been taken. It is thought that it was brought here by a negro from Greenwood. The patients are all negroes.

In Token of Their Appreciation.

Mr. D. M. Wilkins, who for some time has held the position of overseer of the weaving room in the Newberry Cotton Mills, resigned on Tuesday. Tuesday night he was presented by the help in his department with an elegant gold watch chain and charm and a silver castor. This in token of their appreciation of his worth and impartiality. Presentation was made by Mr. C. D. Knight. Mr. Wilkins goes to North Carolina, where he will spend a month before accepting a position.

A Number of Games Arranged.

Manager Fair has completed arrangements for a number of games of ball to be played during the present month, beginning with three with Laurens on the 14th, 15th and 16th. On the 17th, 18th and 19th Newberry will cross bats with the O. G. R. Mills on the Columbia diamond, with Batesburg on the Batesburg diamond on the 21st, 22d and 23d, and again with the mill aggregation, in Columbia, on the 24th, 25th and 26th. This makes twelve games with but one day's intermission, and that day is Sunday.

The Newberry team has been playing some good clean ball and deserves the hearty support of the Newberry people.

Campaign Day
In Newberry.CANDIDATES FOR STATE OFFICES

An Orderly Meeting Unsatisfactory to Candidates—Crowd Numbered About 600—Close Attention and Little Applause—Stevenson and Gunter Wax a Little Warm to the Advantage of Gunter.

A representative audience of about 600 persons, including a number of ladies, heard the candidates for State offices on Tuesday. To the candidates it was an unsatisfactory meeting. The people had not decided on any man, and went out to hear the speeches, and to decide on the men best fitted for the various positions, and not to whoop up any favorite. All the speakers were heard with close attention.

Among the candidates for governor, Heyward was probably the favorite of the crowd, with Tillman a close second. Both received applause, as, in fact, did all the other candidates for this position.

The meeting was orderly throughout, and there was very little display of fireworks by the speakers. Several debates among those seeking the office of railroad commissioner waxed a little warm, Mr. Prince making the charge against Mr. Wilborn that he knew of violations of the law and had not collected a penny of penalty, and Mr. Wilborn replying with spirit.

Messrs. Stevenson and Gunter also got a little heated in their arguments. Mr. Stevenson made the charge that the chief constable of the constabulary force in Columbia had organized his district for Mr. Gunter, and wanted to inform the governor that it was time he was looking after his chief constable, Mr. Bateman. Mr. Gunter renewed his charges as to the Newberry Bar incident and that Mr. Stevenson had worked in the interest of the railroads while Speaker of the House, and denying the fact that the governor or any one else had instructed the constabulary to work for his election. He had the best of argument, and the crowd was with him.

At night the candidates held forth in front of Senn's store, in West End, in order to give the operatives of the mill an opportunity to hear the speeches. The crowd present numbered a couple hundred voters, and it was a hard matter to tell whom they favored. All the candidates for governor received applause, Tillman, Heyward and Talbert leading. The speeches varied little from those in the morning meeting, and some of the candidates were absent. The crowd, however, was a little more demonstrative, and a fight between a Heyward man and a Tillmanite got well under way. The belligerents, however, were not residents of West End.

Following is the story of the morning meeting in detail: The exercises were opened with prayer by the Rev. Geo. A. Wright. The crowd, being a little slow in gathering, Mr. John D. Frost was asked to use his stentorian voice, which he did with effect, and the speaking began about 10.30 o'clock.

Chairman Goggans, after bespeaking for all the candidates the earnest attention of the audience, introduced the candidates for

COMPTROLLER GENERAL.

Mr. A. W. Jones came first. The office he sought was the most important in the State government, and he described its duties. Before he was connected with the office in the insurance department the insurance laws had not been enforced but now they were. The crying evil of the day is the inequality in the valuation of property for taxation. He had traveled over the State and knew whereof he spoke, giving instances. He had just gone into the record of his endeavors to secure this equality in valuation when time was called.

Mr. W. H. Sharp was a new hand at State campaigning, but if all the promises of his opponents would come to pass South Carolina would be a perfect Elysium. But when they are all retired you will pay your taxes as you used to do, for taxation is the price of government. They talked of their intimacy with the duties of the office, but they were not so intimate that anybody couldn't perform them. And by the God of nations he would enforce the law as it was given him. He had worked out his own education and went on to tell of his struggles with poverty. The only objection to his opponents was he wanted the job himself.

Mr. G. L. Walker described the duties of the office and gave his experience in the tax department. Had been treasurer of his county for eight years and three years chief clerk in the office he sought. He hoped to see the time come when property would be assessed upon a more equitable plan, and should be elected would strive in this direction.

Mr. N. W. Brooker gave his record. Was thoroughly equipped for the duties of the office, with a knowledge of the tax laws, and determined to improve them. He had asked Mr. Jones a question at Orangeburg which he had not answered. He found upon leaving Columbia that insurance license fees had not been paid into the treasury, but held over during the summer and not paid until fall. He meant no charge against insurance companies, but wanted to call attention to it and to demand on behalf of the people that this money be paid.

Mr. Jones said Mr. Derham was bonded officer of this State and had charge of these funds, and he had nothing to do with them.

Mr. Brooker meant no charge against Mr. Jones. Matters had warmed up a little, and both gentlemen were called to order by Chairman Goggans and took their seats. The candidate for who has no opposition, came next. Mr. Jennings did not want to make a speech, but only to thank the people of Newberry for their support two years ago, and especially the ladies, to whom more than any others he owed his election. Chairman Goggans then introduced those aspiring to the office of

ADJUTANT AND INSPECTOR GENERAL. Mr. J. M. Patrick found himself unequally pitted against his competitors. Both were colonels and veterans. He could not discuss issues, for there were none. He favored education, good roads, low taxes. His competitors wanted the office and that was what he wanted. He had been connected for eighteen years with the Patrick Military Institute, and was in charge of the military department.

Col. J. C. Boyd did not have the pleasure of being born in Newberry, but thought the next best thing to do was to marry here, and he did so, and was satisfied. He did not have diplomas from military colleges, as his competitors had, but he had a diploma gained in the service of the State from '61 to '65. But that was not all. In the dark days of '75 he had given his best service to the State, and had continually done so since that time, and today commanded its First Regiment. He wanted to wind up his career in the service of his State in the office to which he aspired. He did not enlist in the Spanish war because he didn't have the political pull to get a commission. He closed with applause from the crowd.

Col. J. D. Frost said there were ties in Newberry County that he could never forget. His mother was born here and it was with a peculiar pleasure that he was here asking the suffrage of Newberry people. He entered the Citadel at 16, and graduated senior captain in 1891. At the outbreak of the Spanish war he had no political pull but the governor sent for him and gave him the first position as adjutant of the First Regiment. General Floyd had appointed him assistant adjutant and inspector general in 1898 over 47 competitors, and he challenged comparison of the militia of today with militia of the past. He stood on his record alone. He received much applause.

A letter was read from Mr. Geo. D. Rouse excusing himself on account of a physical disability.

Mr. P. E. Ayer was not present. The ten candidates for RAILROAD COMMISSIONER were next introduced.

Mr. A. C. Jepson had had forty years experience as a practical engineer, where his salary was as large as it would be in office, but he was getting too old to run an engine. He felt his experience had made him an expert, and thought it best for the people that they have a practical railroad man on the Board.

Mr. H. J. Kinard claimed connection on one side of his family with the other with nearly every family in Newberry County. He asked for support upon his 28 years experience as a practical business man, in shipping and receiving freight, and the record of his six years in the legislature representing Greenwood County. Would protect the people against the oppression of the great corporations if given the opportunity.

Mr. John G. Mobley thought railroad government the most important question of the times. Railroads are potent factors in the advancement of a community, but they can also mar its prosperity. There should be strict supervision to see they have all coming to them, but no more. For this purpose Board of Commissioners was established. There are many remedies now demanded, proper accommodations, equality of freight rates, running on schedule time, which he would strive to make.

Mr. J. C. Wilborn did not think himself a stranger here. He came to give an account of his stewardship and to ask for re-election. He knew the railroad laws had been violated.

Mr. Prince wanted to know if he had ever collected a penny for these violations.

Mr. Wilborn did not know of any violations but was only asking the people for information. He was ready to quit the campaign any time to hear any complaint of violations.

Mr. Prince here produced a letter written him by T. F. Wilson at Lamar, in which it was said about 30 letters of complaint had been written the Commission and claims sent in, but no reply received. He demanded that Wilborn read the letter, which he did.

Mr. Wilborn said the trouble with Mr. Prince was, he didn't know the difference between Railroad Commission and department of claims.

Incident closed with cheers for Wilborn, who then went on to show how since he had been in office he had saved the people his weight in gold thirteen times. Mr. J. G. Wolling said duties of the office were important, because in their performance lies your safety of life and limb. He came with seven years' experience as machinist and engineer, and called attention to regulating of rates, building depots, etc. The people have enough promises and were tired of them. He would enforce the laws.
